SENATOR KRISTENSEN: No, no.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: How do you know how many pages it will have?

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: Do you want to take overs and unders on 500 pages?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Say it again.

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: Take overs or unders on 500 pages.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, when the FBI had conducted a month, several months long investigation of certain allegations that were hundreds in number, they only wrote a 14 page response after all of their studying and all of their reviewing. So how do you know it's going to be 500 pages?

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: If I would show you what their past things have been, would that be guidance to you?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Not at all, because I have seen past reports by the FBI on matters far less serious than this, and the reports were much more substantial in terms of the content and the number of pages. Here's what I'm getting to. Aren't you just speculating to make it seem like it would be an impossible task to get that report and be any better prepared after we have it than we are now to address this pro...this problem, these issues?

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: I'm doing my best to answer the questions as you put to me. I'm trying to give you my best guess of what's going to happen and why. I don't have a motive in this.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But why...

SENATOR KRISTENSEN: I'm just telling you that I know...I know how much work it has taken to get to this point, and how much I've had to digest and read through and, by the way, you know, I actually do read most of that stuff. If it is 500 pages, there is no way I'm going to do that. I'm going to wind up...some other competent soul is going to wind up reading it, and I'm going to get a pretty good summary of that.
